Conducted By:	George Sutherland

General

Overall, the facilities are in great condition. Numerous maintenance items are under contract and other maintenance items are performed by in-house staff. A CMMS program is used for corrective and preventative maintenance items and custodial services. A review of documentation and records was performed and produced excellent results. Emergency procedures, based on multiple scenarios, are in place and posted throughout the campus. Certain basic items such as asset information gathering, populating the CMMS, and tagging assets has been underway. Most equipment observed had the asset tags in place and inventoried in the CMMS program. A few items in Kanab are lacking asset tags and should be addressed. All of the spaces navigated were clean and orderly. The electronic documentation portion was presented great. Each numerical section of the standards were presented in folders numerically arranged. During the physical walk, it is clear the facility is well maintained.

Example of mechanical space, typical throughout site
